TEACHING METHODOLOGY

1. FLIPPED CLASSROOM METHOD - CSMU gives opportunity to students to take the podium and give a talk on a topic of their choice, approved by the teacher. This deepens subject knowledge as well as expression of thought and uproot the so-called stage-fear of the student, preparing them for the real world.

2. LEARNING THROUGH ARGUMENTATION - At CSMU, Teachers spark meaningful discussion in classrooms by encouraging students to ask open-ended questions, re-state remarks in more scientific language, develop and use models to construct explanations.

3. CONTEXT-BASED LEARNING - CSMU enables students to learn from experience and going through the enriched context such as visiting industries, on site projects and open world environment.

4. ADAPTIVE TEACHING - Under practice of adaptive teaching, CSMU uses data about a learner's previous and current learning to create a personalized path through educational content.

5. PROBLEM-BASED LEARNING - We use Problem based learning approach where students are given complex questions and assignments to stimulate their critical thinking, creative skill and problem solving abilities.

6. PROJECT BASED LEARNING - CSMU makes students work across disciplines, employ technologies to make communication and product realization more efficient or to design solution to real world problems posed by outside organizations.

7 REMOTE LABORATORIES - one of the distinguished feature of CSMU is Remote Laboratories, typically consists of virtual apparatus created by computer simulations and behaves as per their principles. These laboratories help students to have deep understanding by offering hands on investigation and opportunities for direct observation that complement textbook learning
